RECEPTION.

Mrs. F. B. Drake gave a very handsomely appointed reception at her residence on Sixth street last Tuesday evening from two o'clock until six. She was assisted by Miss Packard, of New Jersey, at present her guest, and the affair was a success throughout. The reception room and the refreshment table were decorated with tasteful designs of smilax and cut flowers and presented a very attractive appearance. The table was further adorned with a pyramid of fruit and the refreshments served consisted of salads, oysters, olives, cakes, coffee, etc., all tinted with served in quaint and novel holders of fanciful shapes. These were ordered from the well-known house of Beers in St. Louis.

Mrs. Drake received her guests in a costume of black faille Francais, with an entire jetted front, duchesse lace garniture and diamonds.

Miss Packard wore a costume of black thread lace over blue satin, broad black ribbon finish at the throat; ornaments diamonds.

Among the invited guests were: Mesdames Ilgenfritz, John Wansley, L. F. Sheldon, J. R. Barrett, L. E. Davidson, D. H. Smith, J. G. White, A. C. Marvin, H. A. Pratt, G. H. Scott, C. E. Messerly, Geo. W. Galbreath, L. A. Rose, J. C. Thompson, Ira Hinsdale, John B. Gallie, H. L. Berry, D. Y. Wheeler, R. H. Moes, S. H. Beffer, J. H. Doyle, J. H. Mara, B. F. Roller, Frank Donohoe, F. H. Geunther, Arthur J. Maltby, Phil E. Chapell, Dr. McCluney, J. J. Wilkins, C. C. Leonard, Dr. Barnes, D. A. Clark, J. M. Byler, Frank Houston, W. H. Evans, Misses Gertrude Smith, Mamie Chapell, Warren, Ida Newkirk, Minnie Scott, Lillie Bruner, Isabel Daniels, Mesdames W. H. Evans, Deitzler and Watson.

—Mrs. Henry Evans entertained a very large number of her friends at her handsome residence on Fifth street last Thursday afternoon. The house was most beautifully and tastefully decorated and the refreshments were of the most delicate kind and served on small tables. The guests included some of the most prominent ladies in the city and the invitation list included almost seventy names.

FAREWELL PARTY.

A farewell and birthday party was jointly celebrated at the residence of Mrs. Lee Miller, corner Seventh and Kentucky streets yesterday afternoon. The farewell was in honor of Mrs. Carl Wile's pretty children, Florence, Clara, Mabel and Blanche, who are soon to depart for their future home in New York City, and Mrs. Miller's handsome twin boys Edwin and Harry's fourth birthday. The refreshments of meats, salads, cakes, fruits, confections, lemonade, etc., were much enjoyed by the children as were also the various games they indulged in. The little twin boys received a number of pretty and appropriate presents and throughout it was much enjoyed. Among the guests were: Baby Solie Wolf, aged two months, Minnie Wolf, Flora Goldstein, Pet and Violet Lanpheimer, Jessie and Violet Lovinger, Eva and Carrie David, Hattie Bernheimer, Fannie Kingsbaker, Lorraine Lanpheimer, Lee Lovinger, Aaron King-baker, Solie Deutsch, Sigfried Jacobs and Morrie Lewis.

PROGRESSIVE EUCHE.

A progressive euchre party was given last Tuesday evening at the residence of Mrs. A. B. Dempsey in honor of her guests, Miss Virgie Shirley and Miss Amanda Doney, both of Illinois. Refreshments were nicely served and the occasion was much enjoyed. The first prize for the gentleman was won by Mr. Harry Smith and was a handsomely bound volume of "Bittersweet." The first prize for the ladies was won by Miss Phemie Higleyman and was a beautiful hand painted sachet.

The first booby prize was won by Miss Wez the second by E. Henny.

Among those present were: Misses Rose Hart, Reta Pilkington, Holmes, Grace Mathews, Lizzie Weiz, Phemie Higleyman and Messrs. George McVey, Frank Hughes, George Arnold, Ernest Henney, Will Baird, Harry Smith, Price Page, George Ahrens and others.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

The eleventh birthday of Miss Clara Louise Montgomery was celebrated at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Montgomery, on Broadway, yesterday afternoon in a very enjoyable manner. The refreshments were beautifully served and consisted of sandwiches, pickles, ices, cakes, fruits and confections. Miss Louise received a very large number of beautiful birthday cards and other presents, and with her guests, long remember the occasion. Among these were: Misses Charles Ming, of Helena, Montana, Grace Poize, Nettie Lamm, Bertha and Mabel Townsley, Stella and Bessie Stewart, Rosa Hains, Louise Cottien, Lulu Withers, Irene Temple, Etta and Blanche Faulhaber, Mary Harris, Mary Van Dyke, Florence Hoffman, Hattie Lyon, Emma Marvin, Noye Easton, Alice Walsley, Maggie Walker, Laura Mosby, Flora McLaughlin, Sue Lacy, Alice Mertz, Flora Mackey, Lucie Harris, Mary and Jessie Curran, Mary Thompson and Margaret Sneed.

SOCIAL PARTY.

One of the most enjoyable events of last week was the social dancing party given last Monday evening at Harmony Hall by A. G. Miller. The host excelled himself in providing for the entertainment of his guests and the hall was beautifully decorated. The music, furnished by Prof. L. E. Friemel, violin, Prof. Gross, piano, Prof. Kalzer, clarinet and Mr. Tony Leece did the prompting. At midnight a very choice supper was served at hotel Siche, which was much enjoyed by the guests. The grand march was led by Mr. Miller and Miss Emilie Heller and was very carefully and beautifully gone through with. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Snavely, Clinton, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Leece, Mr. and Mrs. J. Heinrichs, Misses Emilie and Clara Weller, Misses Fischer, Adams, O'Nell, Pfeiffer, Rachel, Jessio, Worner, Pressar, and Messrs. J. L. Bird, F. M. Thias, B. Ryan, J. W. Fitzpatrick, Phil Pfeiffer, Tom Adams, M. A. Segelbaum, W. Grey, W. J. Riley, S. Murray and Geo. Bowman.

TO BE WEDDED.

The wedding of Miss Lou Eva Walker, daughter of Mr. P. G. Walker, and one of the handsomest young ladies in the city, and Mr. George Longan, a prominent lawyer, and formerly state representative, will take place at the Cumberland Presbyterian church on the evening of the 22d of this month. There will be several bridesmaids, and after the wedding a reception will be given to a limited number of immediate friends at the residence of the bride's parents on Broadway.

FASHIONS.

—The Pompadour or Watteau patterns are plush or velvet raised flowers in the softest, yet rich colors in separate small buds or sprays all over a wool serge, or in figured stripes, bars, or a great quille or band to be used on the side or front of the dress skirt. Large plush balls in beautiful shaded colors are on wool grounds, and others are in monotone.

—One on the latest importations is Roman sash ribbons, twenty-four to twenty-seven inches wide, to be used as over-skirts on white lace or muslin for summer wear. These come in the pale blue and rose bars throughout, or else partly of plain light blue with merely the Roman colors knotted across the ends for a pretty finish. A pink gauze dress draped with one of these Roman sashes is a charming and youthful toilette.

—The fancy for ribbon trimmings is so great that they are no longer confined to bonnets, but are used on dresses, serving in narrow widths for bayadere stripes on pleatings at the foot and sides of the skirts, in broader widths for making stripes lengthwise on draperies, on tabliers, on wraps and even on the cloaks or coats of little children. Entire fronts of evening dresses are covered with loops of ribbon pointed and finished with a pendant of beads, or with fancifully arranged bows, loops and scarfs. Rosettes and ladders of ribbon trim the sides of dresses, forming paniers, ladders, bridges, etc., and there are sleeves and bodices made up of ribbons set on net or gauze for evening dresses to be worn as full dress as at present, and later on for more general use.

—The neck ribbons worn tied in a bow in front or on the left side, or else basted in the collar of the dress, are imported in great variety for the next season. Fanciful plaids in French—not Scotch—colors and stripes of two contrasting colors, are seen among the new ribbons for the neck, with the edges finished with a cable cord of the two colors, or else in loops. There are also many plain muslin ribbons with loops of contrasting colors that will be very effective when doubled to show both edges above the neck of the dress; the broad edge, or doubled picot loop, given a very decorative finish. The Pompadour or Watteau ribbons, with rosebuds through the centre and looped edges, are the gayest of all, and are shown in inch widths for the neck.

—Plaids, stripes and Pompadour designs are the leading features of fine wool fabrics. The soft wool grounds are woven in zigzag chudab-like stripes, or in armure of tiny fish scale patterns, and are then velours raye, striped with velvet, or else they are velours carreau, plaids of velvet. The grounds are of light Suede, cream, heliotrope, old pink, Havana brown, moss green, sage, pigeon's-egg blue, or copper red, with perhaps all these colors in the raised velvet stripes or bars. Wide stripes are made up of many lines of the velvet, each of a different color, and the plaids are large, with eight or ten colors in the bars. These are to be used mostly for the lower skirt and a drapery will be plaid, which the top edge is of plain wool or plain velvet matching in color the background of the plaid.

—Wool stuffs without silk come in the smooth taffetas and beiges that are always popular because of their light weight, and may be had plain, or barred in lines of contrasting color, or crossed with knotted threads of the same shade, or they may be striped with double and twisted threads giving a rough surface. "Potted suitings" are shown with their zigzag grounds strewn with large balls of different colors. Shepherd's checks appear in various ways, alone, or in stripes alternating with plain stripes, or else as a part of large plaids in the way already noted. A favorite fashion of last year appears again in stuffs that have broad stripes down half of their front width, while the other half is in hair-line stripes; this is to serve either for long drapery or for the lower skirt, with a short drape-like that of the narrow-striped pairs. Diagonal lines of usual widths are on some new plain stuffs, and there are lovely camel-hair fabrics with stripes for the lower skirt, and plain goods for the over dress. Thin summer wools, like veiling, have their smooth surfaces roughened by knotted threads in bars or in groups that form wide wools for summer dress, and it is said for them that they will wear better than the canvas and basket-woven white wools of last year, which were given to fraying.

—For sailor suits of light weight are Cheviots and Angora cloths in fine lines, pink checks, and stripes of black and white together, or of dark Havana brown with Suede, dark blue with white or else green, copper, red, or plum-color. Drab and tan shades, brown and gray, are very largely represented in what is called covert cloth, or short covert coats to be worn with suits of wool of light colors, or as an occasion wrap to go with almost any dress. There are also loosely woven English cloths in small blocks of two or three colors—such as olive with blue, red or brown—to make traveling suits, or the s-and suits worn in the morning for shopping and for any use except for visits and afternoon entertainments. The heavy moiré stuffs with hair stripes are seen again both in qualities for dresses and also for long wraps for traveling cloaks; these fabrics were well, and are chosen for use rather than beauty. Illuminated wools in a melange of colors in small dashes and also in set stripes will be made up simply in tailor styles. The sleazy diagonal wools of light quality are shown in all dark colors, with white lines and bars like those of last summer. For ulsters and Newmarkets are English cloths in blocks an inch square, or only half as large, with dark brown, moss green, or dull blue for the prevailing hue. Striped cloths come in the same coloring.

POCAHONTAS.

Another Interesting Communication for the BAZOO Readers.

Jefferson City, Feb. 12. —[Correspondence.] The round of social pleasures still continues with no promise of abatement. One or two veterans have fallen by the way side, victims to neuralgia, and other like diseases to which dissipation makes us heirs. Still the majority seems able to hold out to the end. One of the most enjoyable affairs of this week was Mrs. D. W. Marmaduke's reception, when her "dear five hundred friends" were invited to meet the Misses Yerby, of Marshall, two very charming young ladies, who will add the brilliancy of their presence to the gay crowd already here. Miss Harwood will throw open the doors of the Mansion on next Tuesday in honor of her nieces, the Misses Yerby, and that will be the anticipated event from hence on. All society will be shaking out ruffles, recriminating locks, and

HOPING FOR AN INVITATION.

In the meantime they are solacing their tired selves with the memory of the concert given by Miss Alice Bradbury and Miss Bethine Almond, on Friday evening. The lovely notes of Miss Almond's voice rang softly through my ears, as she sang: "The Prayer from Der Freischutz," and the sweetest notes were in her response to an encore—Tosti's, "good bye," Miss Bradbury sang from the opera of, "Il Barbiere," "Una voce poca fa," was rendered most beautifully by her mezzo soprano voice. Her encore was more beautiful than all, she sang "Marguerite."

The annual masquerade of the Germania club, was well attended on Tuesday night, and was thoroughly enjoyable to all. The Germania club is a most successful rival of the much vaunted Imperial—and in hospitality is beyond comparison. The Germania was organized by one of our best Germans as a family club, where their children could enjoy the dancing and yet be under the eye of pater families. This is certainly a unique way and a most sensible one, to give the little ones, after school hours an evening of real pleasure. With such staunch gentlemen as Col. W. J. Dalmeier, E. Mayor Bender, Mr. J. Strauss, as sponsors for the club, it will remain a special feature of Jefferson's social life. Mrs. A. P. Grimshaw gave a very pretty afternoon tea on Friday from 2 to 5, to meet Miss Nellie Ingram, and Gertrude Faulhaber of Sedalia. Only young unmarried ladies were included in the list of invited guests, and the line of carriages that came and went, too together with the crowd that thronged the spacious parlors; a stranger would gather the idea that all Jefferson was

ENJOYING SINGLE BLESSEDNESS, [or wretchedness] at any rate we have a good sized garden of flowers waiting patiently and tearfully to be plucked—with only a few modest violets, the major part are full grown sunflowers on hollyhocks, and in this connection I am reminded of a german given not long ago, by a leader of our young society, who numbered about thirty-two young ladies among the guests invited and only eight young gentlemen, hence the list was necessarily divided into "those who came and those who staid away"—and the young hostess cried frantically to me, "My dearest friend remained at home 'cause there wasn't boys enough to go around."

"Pity 'tis true, but when the capital goes to Sedalia what a HARVEST OF BEAUX THERE WILL BE.

My heart grows rapturously delighted, (for the girls, of course,) in simple anticipation. One of the very handsomest members of the House, is compelled to wear daily and nightly to the opera and the hops, a very small silk skull cap which is allowed to remain jauntily upon his head, with just the faintest suspicion of blonde locks peeping beneath. Of course we sympathize with the necessity, but commend the foresight displayed. It was suggested at the masquerade that Mr. Turner might disguise himself by taking off his cap, and personating "innocence."

Mrs. Arthur Maltby, of Sedalia, is here, the guest of General Minor's family, and will take a part in Mrs. Jarley's Wax Works, on Monday. She will be one of the "three little maids from school." Miss Estelle Vogdes and Mrs. Griffin will personate the other two.

Miss Bensberg's concert, Wednesday evening was a very swell affair and patronized by our society people. The boxes were gay with bright coloring and beautiful women. Among the most conspicuously lovely was Miss Miller, a young St. Louis debutante, now the guest of the Misses Gamble, and one of the most attractive little ladies that has visited here this winter
